Over £35,000 was raised for Jewish Care at the Next Generation Gentleman's Evening in May at the Café Royal. The event included three bouts of professional boxing, organised by promoter Robert Waterman. The evening was enjoyed by an audience of more than 300 people. Committee chairman Richard Goldstein described the evening as an "overwhelming success." He said that funds raised would benefit Jewish Care's KC Shasha Centre for Talking News and Books and the Kadimah Centre for Wellbeing. Mr Goldstein paid tribute to the event sponsors Business Environment, boxing promoter Robert Waterman and all the other committee members (pictured).
